PAUL M. ROBINETT PAPERS

Biographical Sketch

Paul M. Robinett, a descendant of Ozark pioneers, was born December 19, 1893 at Mountain Grove, Missouri, and received his early education there. After graduating from the Mountain Grove High School, he spent the summer working in the Kansas harvest fields and then attended the University of Missouri at Columbia from which he graduated in 1917 with a B.S. in Agriculture. By that time, the United States had declared war on Germany. Robinett volunteered but was underweight and was rejected. As he had received a graduate fellowship at Iowa State University, Ames, he started work there, but could not bring himself to remain inactive during the war. He attempted to enlist, but instead was accepted for officer training. After completing the training, he was commissioned a second lieutenant of cavalry.

Robinett soon found himself with the 1st Cavalry on the Mexican Border where he remained during the remainder of the war and was promoted to first lieutenant in the Regular Army. Soon thereafter he was ordered to the Cavalry School at Fort Riley, Kansas, where he took the Troop Commander's Course. Upon graduation, he was assigned to command Machine Gun Troop No. 1 and at the same time to an instructor in Machine Gunnery and animal transportation. He also became an outstanding horseman and was selected for the Army Equestrian Team.

The Equestrian Team showed in many contests in the United States, Canada, London, England, and represented the United States in the Olympic Games in Paris, France, in 1924. In 1925, he was detailed to attend the French Cavalry School at Saumur, France, and to attend French maneuvers in the Strasbourg area.

In 1927 Robinett was appointed aide-de-camp to Major General Malin Craig and served with him in Panama and then in San Francisco, California. While with General Craig, later Chief of Staff, U.S. Army, he was frequently assigned additional duties in the various staff sections. In 1931, he was designated G-1 and G-4 of Grand Joint Exercise No. 4 in which an Army and Navy force tested the regulations for joint action and the defenses of Hawaii. This was the largest joint maneuver before Pearl Harbor.

In the summer of 1932 Robinett was liaison officer with the judges at the Los Angeles Olympic Equestrian Games. Then for the next two years he was a student at the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, where officers are trained for higher command and staff positions. In 1933 the course was suspended when both students and faculty were detailed with the Civilian Conservation Corps. Robinett went to Oregon with a company but became executive of the Eugene District before being ordered back to school. After graduating at Leavenworth he was assigned to the 9th Cavalry and as an instructor, for the second time, as the Cavalry School and served as G-3 in a test of the 1 Cavalry Corps' Mobilization Plan.

During the summer of 1935 Robinett studied foreign affairs and Japan in courses at Harvard University. In 1936 he was detailed as a student at the Army War College, Washington, D.C. This was followed by assignment to the G-2 Division, War Department General Staff, where he revised or prepared all manuals pertaining to military intelligence. About the time this work was completed, he was appointed to the Secretariat of the War Department General Staff where he was closely associated with Chief of Staff George C. Marshall.

In 1941, when it appeared that the United States might soon be in the war, General Headquarters was formed in Washington and Robinett, now colonel, was assigned as G-2--the intelligence officer. He was also appointed on the Secretariat of the ARCADIA CONFERENCE of the Combined American and British Chiefs of Staff when the Grand Strategy Plans for World War II were developed.

General Headquarters was discontinued in 1942, giving Robinett the opportunity to return to troops and the command of the 13th Armored Regiment. He took this regiment to the British Isles and later to North Africa. He commanded Task Force Green and made an amphibious landing west of Oran and eventually captured the city. For his success, Robinett was promoted brigadier general and given command of Combat Command B, 1st Armored Division. He fought this unit successfully in many engagements, particularly at Dj. el Hamra and Kasserine Passes. He was wounded on 5 May 1943 in the final actions, which led to the capture of Tunis and Bizerta.

For his outstanding work in North Africa, Robinett was awarded the U.S. Distinguished Service Medal, Legion of Merit, and Purple Heart; the French Legion of Honor and Croix de Guerre, with two palms; the Brazilian Order of Military Merit in grade of Commander; and the Tunisian Grand Cordon, Order of Nichan-Iftikhan.

Robinett was sent to Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, D.C., where he came under the skillful hands of another Missourian, Lieutenant Colonel Glen R. Spurling, who performed a delicate operation on the sciatic nerve of his left leg which saved it. Upon release from the hospital in February, 1944, he was assigned as commandant of the Armored School at Fort Knox, Kentucky, on a limited duty status. He held this command through V-J Day. While there he made many improvements in the school and in the field manuals. Then by V-E Day he had developed instructions to fit conditions in the Pacific Theater.

After V-J Day Robinett was returned to Walter Reed Hospital for another operation and was released and retired on 31 August 1946 because of disability, incident to wounds received in battle.

Back in Mountain Grove, he was made an Honorary Member of Kiwanis and a Life Member of the American Legion. He was a Delegate at Large to the Republican National Convention in 1948.

In 1948, Robinett began another career as an historian. As Chief, Special Studies Section, Office of the Chief of Military History, U. S. Army, he had about 75 historians under his supervision. During this work he secured the cooperation of several high ranking German generals in the writing of the Official Military History of the United States Army in World War II. This was the first time history had been written with the participants of both sides collaborating. Colonel General Franz Halder, Chief of Staff, German Army 1940-43, spoke most highly of Robinett's role in furthering the understanding between the two armies which developed after World War II.

Robinett was the recipient of a John S. Guggenheim Fellowship. He is a member of the Societies of Colonial Wars, Sons of the American Revolution, War of 1812, Military Order of the World Wars and the American Legion. He is also a Life Member of the State Historical Society of Missouri and of the Missouri Chapter of the Honor Society of Gamma Sigma Delta, a member of the Cosmos Club in Washington, D.C., and trustee of Patriotic Education, Inc.
